

ABSTRACT

Briefly, in accordance with one embodiment of the invention, a control board system may include a control panel to control a computing platform using a human interface device manager to indicate and to control hardware events on the computing platform. The hardware events may be received by general purpose input/output circuit.